Your past life interests and/or concerns:

Military connection

Lifetimes in medicine, activism, economic injustice, women's rights, or related

Previous Reading:

During our last reading, we uncovered two very violent wartime past lives. We also touched on how your current lifetime is working through karmic debt and vows. This reading is a continuation of that.

The first past life that came up:

Raised by a single mother in France, she was “mother and father” to you in that she taught you very much about how to become a man. You had two siblings (no older brothers) and as a family you were able to provide for yourselves with the small plot/ homestead. You grew up believing women were just as good as men, as she was a strong, hard worker. You never saw her express weakness or frailty. She and a neighbor educated you. When old enough to decide what you wanted to do, you decided to become a Priest. Setting out on your own for the first time, you were rather in shock at society's view on women and had to re-evaluate the lessons taught to you versus the societal view. For the most part you kept your views on controversial politics, and unpopular opinions, to yourself. This allowed you to have a greater standing in the community when you did ‘pick your battles.’ During the Inquisition, Priests came into town, seeking out your advice on any immoral persons you might be aware of, they were especially seeking out “sultry” women. Unable to divert them out of town, they investigated the people independently, and in many cases, you had to vouch for some of the women they identified as potential witches. In one case, a woman had ripped her skirt high up to the hip, and was seen in public. In another circumstance, a young woman of about 17, was seen kissing a man she was not supposed to be kissing. It appears that this group of Inquisitors were making accusations of witchcraft, though in actuality, these women were caught doing other things (or circumstances happened to them). One woman you were unable to save, was burned at the stake.

Important Points:

Karmic Relationships: The mother in this lifetime is a dear friend of yours in this lifetime, though I can not identify who. She is in your soul group. The woman that was burned became part of your karmic debt because you willed it to be part of your debt. You made a soul-level vow upon her death to save her in a future lifetime. The young woman that was kissing a man behind the barn was a wife in another lifetime.

Lessons: Through your upbringing, you were taught a form of right from wrong that contradicted society. The respect you had for your mother was stronger than anything the Priesthood or society could try to teach you, so you stuck to your principles as they were instilled in you. And this lesson, that societal rules are not always in align with your beliefs, had a soul-level impact. In future lifetimes, you may not blindly follow a societal rule or norm simply because it's accepted by the general population.

The next past life that came up:

I'm picking up a lifetime as a paramedic or doctor in the first World War. I am seeing you on "latrine duty," bringing buckets back and forth from an outhouse. This indicates to me your status as a lowly soldier. There is a Russian or Polish connection, it is cold and frosty on the ground, your boots worn down, dark leather. Green loose pants tucked into the boots, I'm seeing medals on your uniform that come much later. You were working as a medic with prisoners, I see barbed wire (the prisoners you are working with are not starving). You slept on a metal cot, alongside the patients in the same room and were rather happy staying near your patients, where you could tend to them as needed. I see you lying on the cot with your fingers folded on the back of your head, pretty carefree, and happy. You feel like you are right where you need to be.

Important Points:

Purpose: Your soul purpose in that lifetime was to "Make Amends." And as a soldier tending to patients, regardless of the lifestyle and lack of amenities, you could feel deep down the contentment. On a soul-level it indicated that you were on the right track of achieving your life's purpose.

Additional Akashic Records Notes:

[This paragraph was removed due to identity-related information. I have permission of my client to share this, but out of respect for his or her privacy, I have removed any highly personal or identifying information.]

Life Purpose Today:

Your current lifetime's goals are: "Gratitude and Achievement" (specifically, experiencing the achievement following a great uphill battle and the uphill battle you are to experience in getting there).

What might get in the way of achieving those goals:

Feeling too down on yourself, or focusing too much negativity inward.

Trying to help too many people that are close to you in ways that they don't want to be helped or are not ready accept the help.

Having multiple relationships that may feel like failures.

Thank you for allowing me to read for you. Love and Light, Readings With Katie

This life is but a brief tenure, one of many perspectives a spirit must experience in the quest for eternity.
